District Should Have Representation in Congress Under New System of Local Government.

As I was a member of the special oint committee to investigate and re port on the fiscal relations of the gov rnment and the District of Columbia abolition of the half-and-half system of meeting the obligations of the Disrict, I feel somewhat responsible for the unfortunate, and I think, unjust, construction of that report making the District of Columbia primarily, and the liable for the maintenance of its own capital. I am not saving this in critiism of the report of the committee, no such intention and said no such Benjamin Franklin Invented the thing in its report. But I hope it will report made by me I went further and report made by me I went further and emphasized the fact that we must consider the District as a national affair for which the government alone must be held responsible, and that the District of Columbia, as a municipal organization, is a false quantity and should be wholly abolished. Let me quote briefly from that separate report as expressing, somewhat, my views on the subject:

"Evidently the imposition of duty upon the committee in this form proceeds upon the theory that there are within the territorial boundaries of the District of Columbia two distinct corporate or governmental organizations, each of which is responsible, in part, for the administration of the District and liable for a portion of its expenses. Being exclusive, this power cannot lawfully be delegated to any other municipal organization or body. In fact, none of this power of jurisdiction has been delegated to the District of Columbia. It is a nominal municipal corporation only, without officers, without authority and without any function whatever to perform as such. The so-called District officers are appointed by and are in fact the officers of the national government. It can make no laws, but is governed wholly by laws enacted by Congress. Its treasury, so called and mentioned so often in appropriation bills, has no existence in fact. It has no money and no power to collect any. YOUR LEAKY ROOF a mere shell, without any authority, power or responsibility, and without any of the attributes or functions of a municipal government. It is worse than that. It is a delusion and a snare. It has led the people of the District to believe that they have a local government that is some shield and protection to them as against the power of Congress, and at the same time has led some members of Congress and people outside of the District to believe that the national government can divide the responsibility of maintaining, building up and beautifying its own capital with such a local government. The situation is wholly misleading and hurtful.

"I need say but little more on this branch of the subject. I have shown that practically the District of Columbia is a mere name without authority or responsibility. It is the capital of the nation, for which the nation alone is responsible. It must be appeared that there can be no divided authority or responsibility. I think the government should once for all take over its own capital and provide for and maintain it. And the name of it should be changed. To call the capital of the country a 'district' is incongruous and anything but pleasing. It should be changed. To call the capital of the country a 'district' is incongruous and anything but pleasing. It should be changed. To call the capital of the country a 'district' is incongruous and anything but pleasing. It should be changed. To call the capital of the country a 'district' is incongruous and anything but pleasing. It should be changed. To call the capital of the country a 'district' is incongruous and anything but pleasing. It should be changed. To call the capital of the capital of the c the government with authority within proper limits to manage and control its affairs. The commissioners should be government officers and responsible as such. I am convinced that they should be given much broader and more comprehensive power and authority in dealing with local affairs than the District Commissioners now have.

District a Mockery, He Says.

District, as a municipality, is a mockery. It is looked upon as a local organization, maintained and operated in the interest of the people residing in the District. It is nothing of the kind. As I tried to point out in my report, it has no power to do anything or to protect the people of the District in any way. It is not only a wholly useless incumbrance, but gives Congress an excuse for saying that the District must pay half or more of the expenses of the capital, when, in fact, it pays nothing and never has. It is entirely a question between the taxpayers and the government. The alleged District as an organized body has nothing to do with it. "And the special committee found, and I think correctly, that the people of the District are paying reasonable taxes as compared with other cities. When this is done the government should receive the money thus raised into its treasury and then appropriate all that is necessary to the needs of the District, without regard to the amount contributed in taxes. There is no other just or reasonable way to deal with the subject.

Bar to Fair Administration.

I assert without hesitation and in all riendliness to the people of the District of Columbia that this mythical municipal organization is the one stumbling block in the way of a just and fair administration of the affairs of the capital. Until it is removed, we will have, year after year, just the same troubles that we are having now and have had ever since I have been in the Senate. There are, and always will be, men in Congress who will hide behind the District organization and economize, sometimes. I am afraid, beconomize, sometimes, I am afraid, be-ause it is popular at home. If the district organization, that is of no benfit whatever to the people of the Dis-rict, is abolished and the affairs of the trict, is abolished and the affairs of the capital made, as it should be, and as the Constitution intended it to be, a national affair under national control, there would be no divided responsibility, but Congress would feel compelled to care for its own capital in a manner commensurate with the interests and to the credit of this great nation.

ests and to the credit of this great nation.

It is most unfortunate that the capital of the nation should be neglected when Congress is appropriating millions of dollars for internal improvements in the states, in violation of the very spirit of the Constitution. The reason for this is not far to seek. It is popular to spend government money in the states, and with too many unthinking and unpatriotic people it is popular to save money that should be used to make the capital worthy of a great and prosperous nation. If we could clear away the rubbish and place the responsibility for the maintenance, upkeep and beautification of the capital of the nation upon Congress, where it should and does belong, surely the representatives of the people of the whole country, whose capital it is, would have patriotism and pride enough to meet this responsibility by making the capital the most beautiful and attractive of all the national capitals in the world. of all the national capitals in the world

Prevents Worthy Improvements.

In my opinion this will never be acthe half-and-half system. The divided responsibility that it implies and the excuse it furnishes members of Congress to shift the responsibility to a gress to shift the responsibility to a make-believe local municipality is bound to stand in the way of and, in great measure, to prevent the accomplishment of great and worthy improvements so much needed.

Instead of the useless District of Columbia municipality the people of the District should be given representation in both houses of Congress, and the Constitution should be so amended as to give them that right.

I am sure the people of the District of Columbia will believe me when I say that my views on this subject, so important to them, involves no unfriendliness toward them or any lack of sympathy for them in their fight for adequate appropriations for the capital without injustice to them.

"In other words, what used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing on no set of principles, advocating no national policy, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win. And this party is about to meet in convention at Chicago to select whatever candidate looks best at the last moment and whatever principles promise to weather the storm until November.
